

PROF.(MS) PRADEEPA SILVA

Pradeepa Silva is a senior professor attached to the Department of Animal Science, Faculty of Agriculture, University of Peradeniya. She is an Animal Scientist, and her speciality is Genetics and Animal Breeding. Her research interest mainly focuses on the performance and diversity of indigenous animal genetic resources and their farming systems in Sri Lanka and climate change adaptation of farm animals. She has experience in working with farming communities for her research and development activities. . She has contributed to 29 books and book chapters, and written more than 100 scientific communications. She is serving as a member of several national committees at present and participating in project development and policy formulation at national level.